Since its launch in October the Children’s Aid Societies of Ontario Early Years Ontario (CAEY) has been working to develop new programs and services to support the needs of children and families in Ontario. Our mandate is to enhance the delivery of high quality, sustainable service to children and youth. We understand that a child’s well-being is influenced by many factors, including their health, education, and emotional and social development.

One such initiative is the Children’s Aid Societies of Ontario Early Years Canada Program, which is currently in its second phase. This program focuses on providing support to children and families through a variety of services, including child care, early childhood education, and mental health services.

In the first phase of the program, we worked to develop a comprehensive framework for aligning early childhood education programs with the needs of children and families. This framework is intended to help early childhood educators and parents better understand the specific needs of children and the services available to support them.

In the second phase of the program, we have begun to implement the framework in a number of communities across Ontario. This work is ongoing and we are continually assessing the needs of children and families to ensure that our services are meeting their needs.

As we continue to develop and implement our programs, we remain committed to working with our partners and stakeholders to ensure that children and families receive the support they need to thrive.

Thank you for your support and for helping us to make a difference in the lives of children and families in Ontario.
